T2 Alpha Humerus

Today, Stryker Trauma GmbH is the market leader in intramedullary devices for the fixation of fractures for all extremities. In an effort to increase future market penetration, a new operative method for the fixation of proximal humerus fractures shall be developed. In this regard, a new anatomic design with an enhanced positioning of locking screws is of greatest significance. With the aid of an innovative targeting device, the surgeon shall be capable of inserting the nail in a minimally invasive and precise way. Novel imaging methods will be used to accomplish this goal.
